Do you know Chirripó National Park?

This is one of Costa Rica's wildest national parks, but relatively accessible by foot. The number one attraction in Chirripó National Park is climbing "Cerro Chirripó Grande", the highest peak in Costa Rica. The views are spectacular, on a clear day, you can see the Pacific Ocean and the Caribbean Sea simultaneously, so do not forget your camera.

It is long (15 km), and steep (nearly 3,000 meters) in elevation gain, but there are mountain huts (shelters) where you can spend the night, so you do not have to carry a tent. To protect the fragile ecosystems, camping is not allowed, except at the designated campground on the Herradura trail.

You can stay overnight in the shelters inside the park (reservations required). The first shelter is at Llano Bonito, not quite halfway up. The second, and main shelter about two kilometers from the peak is the "Centro Ambientalista El Paraíso". The third shelter is in the "Valle de las Morenas" a few kilometers north of Chirripó. All require reservations. Outside the park, many lodging options exist in and around "San Gerardo de Rivas".

Cocos Island: A World Natural Wonder

Cocos Island, located 550 km off the Pacific coast of Costa Rica, is the only island in the tropical eastern Pacific with a tropical rainforest. Its position as the first point of contact with the northern equatorial current, the interactions between the island and the surrounding marine ecosystem, and its rainy weather, make the area an ideal laboratory for studying biological processes. The island's underwater world has become famous due to the attraction it holds for divers, who rate it as one of the best places in the world to view large species such as sharks, rays, tuna, and dolphins.

The island is accessible exclusively by boat, then you get to a station. Unfortunately, there are no trails to go hiking or walking around, so you must stay in the station. Travelers may wish to discover the mysteries of the sea with a scuba diving excursion. These adventurous tourists can explore inspiring underwater caves. In Cocos Island, snorkeling is a favorite pastime. Tourists can also view the wonders of the sea while floating above the local marine life.

- 25) What is the text about?

San Isidro Labrador's Day

Around Costa Rica, many people celebrate May 15th in honor of San Isidro Labrador. With a high population of Catholics, Costa Rican towns join in paying respect to the Patron Saint of farmers. The celebration starts with a mass early in the morning to give thanks and honor San Isidro for their crops and their farm animals. The priest focuses on the importance of farmers' work for the local communities. After that, there is a colorful procession with the image of San Isidro. This event is mainly popular in farming communities or towns named San Isidro.

Then, the priest starts blessing the farmers' products. They offer their best fresh fruit and vegetables. You may find potatoes, cassava, all types of pumpkins, and oranges. It is a colorful event. The priest also blesses the farm animals because they are an essential part of the farmers' work, including cows, bulls, goats, and even pets such as cats, dogs, and rabbits.

After the religious events, people can try typical dishes and drinks made of fresh farm products. In some communities, sporting events such as soccer games and competitions take place to close the celebration. It is a very colorful and interesting celebration.
